Are You Using Chip Cards Yet?

Last October, the major U.S. card companies imposed a shift of liability for certain transactions. A recent study shows that almost half of retailers haven't updated their equipment or processing systems to accept chip or "Europay, MasterCard and Visa" (EMV) cards. It also finds that many consumers are indifferent or uncertain about the benefits that chip cards offer. Here's more about the pros and cons of EMV compliance.

Help Avoid Costly Age Discrimination Claims

Year after year, tens of thousands of age discrimination claims find their way to the EEOC. Depending on the outcome, they may cost employers a bundle. Yet some companies continue to violate the laws that govern hiring. Here's what happened to three businesses when they were charged with using age as a factor in employment decisions.
