Wilson LaGraize, Jr. CPA/CFF, CRFAC recently gave a Forensic Accounting presentation at LSU. The students were very interested and we thank these future CPA's for their hospitality.

Who will be Your Successor?

Picking someone to lead your company after you is a daunting task. Keep an open mind and assume nothing. For example, a family member may seem the obvious choice. But he or she must really want the job and be qualified. Maybe a current employee is the better choice, but start grooming him or her early and monitor readiness carefully. Alternatively, you might need to find an external candidate. To do so, consider networking, targeted ads and even an executive search firm. Overwhelmed? Don't be; we can help you create an effective succession plan.

Capital vs. Ordinary: Classifying Income and Losses Affects Your Taxes

If you sell an asset, will the profit be taxed at the (lower) long-term capital gains rate or the (higher) ordinary income rate? Or, if you incur a loss, how soon can you deduct it? In most situations, classifying taxable gains and losses as capital or ordinary is fairly straightforward — but not always. Here's a closer look at this issue and how some courts have ruled on it recently.
