Are You Ready for the New IRS Partnership Audit Rules?

A new partnership audit regime goes into effect for the 2018 tax year that assesses incremental taxes, penalties and interest at the partnership level. However, many partnerships can elect to follow alternative rules. Here's guidance on what's changing, including the importance of choosing a partnership representative to handle audit matters. We've also got good news for partnerships that missed the new tax filing deadline for the 2016 tax year.

How To Recognize a Good Leader for Your Company

Ever wonder why it's so hard to find and hire the best people to lead your organization? Too often, the bad apples get the press... like the manager who diverts company funds or the supervisor who commits sexual harassment. These are the people you hear about, in the news or just around the water cooler. Good leaders generally get no press at all. So how do you separate the wheat from the chaff?

Business Interruption Claims Require Professional Help

Collecting on insurance loss claims can take months after a company's operations are forced to shut down temporarily because of a severe storm or other devastating event. Click "Full Article" for the reasons why you should seek advice from an accountant rather than go it alone if your company has to file a claim under a business interruption insurance policy.
